

The Impact of Group Identity on Coalition Formation

Denise Laroze^{*1}, David Hugh-Jones^{†2} and Arndt Leininger^{‡3}

¹Centre for Experimental Social Sciences and Department of Management,
Universidad de Santiago de Chile

²School of Economics, University of East Anglia,

³Otto Suhr Institute of Political Science, Freie Universität Berlin

February 27, 2020

Word Count \approx 7,200

Manuscript under Review

^{*}denise.laroze@cess.cl (corresponding author). Denise Laroze is an Associate professor at the Center for Experimental Social Sciences and Department of Management, Universidad de Santiago de Chile. My research interests include behavioural social sciences, with a focus on financial literacy, lying, and political parties. I approach these topics from a broad methodological perspective including advanced econometrics and experimental designs.

[†]d.hugh-jones@uea.ac.uk

[‡]arndt.leininger@fu-berlin.de.

This experiment was funded by ESSEXLab seedcorn funds Num. FY00324, FY00333 and FY00344.